COMMENTS ON STATEMENT OF REASON FOR ALLOWANCE

In the above-referenced case, the Examiner sets forth a Statement of Reasons for Allowance. That statement refers only to a Terminal Disclaimer filed in the case. The Examiner does not note or discuss the various patentable elements and combinations of elements set forth in the independent claims. That is, each of the independent claims recites unique patentable features, or combinations of features, not mentioned by the Examiner. Therefore, all of the claims are allowable for other reasons in addition to those specifically set forth in the Statement of Reasons for Allowance.

Furthermore, each of the dependent claims includes additional patentable features, or combinations of features, not mentioned by the Examiner, which define over the prior art. Accordingly, each of those dependent claims is believed to be allowable based upon its base independent claim and also upon those other features recited in those various dependent claims that are not discussed or noted by the Examiner in the Reasons for Allowance. Therefore, the claims are allowable for reasons beyond those stated by the Examiner.

Applicant knows of no fees due herein with this submission. However, if any charges or credits are necessary, please apply them to Deposit Account 23-3000.

Respectfully submitted,
